The U.S. Department of Energy's Energy Efficiency and Conservation Block Grant program has released $14.4 million in American Recovery and Reinvestment Act funding to New Jersey.

New Jersey is slated to receive a total of about 17.4 billion from ARRA, commonly called the federal stimulus program, during the next three years, according to state estimates in a release issued Sunday, October 4, 2009.

The State Board of Public Utilities will administer the funding, and will pass along more than 70 percent to cities and counties that were not eligible for direct block grants, Corzine said.

Local governments can use the sub-grants to improve energy efficiency at existing municipal buildings, while the state will use the money for renewable energy and energy efficiency projects at its own facilities. The work at state-owned facilities is expected to create more than 200 green jobs, Corzine said.
